

Journey Magazine

How long in business?

Starting our 5th year!

Primary business/service offered?

Journey is a progressive multi-media publishing company driven to amplify a message that addiction is treatable, recovery is possible and help is available.

What makes your business special?

We're on a mission to save lives. Our aim is to reduce addiction stigma by shining a light on the hope, help and support that should be available to everyone. With our brand, we elevate and amplify inspiring personal recovery stories, programs and resources. We do this online, offline, in communities and on stage.

Best thing you sell/serve/do?

We provide organizations an opportunity to be seen by a community that self-identifies. They're able to align themselves with a solution-focus brand that aims to change the addiction narrative and expand the lens by which society views recovery. Addiction affects most people and for those organizations that join in making recovery visible we offer them a chance to raise their hand and be seen as being part of the solution.

Something people don't realize about your business?

We are a Maine-based, woman-owned, independent media company made up of people in recovery and we believe it's our responsibility to publish content that encourages its readers to share a message of hope - human to human. We're a no drama, no trauma, no trigger publisher - we're all about the hope.
